Background:

As the Managing Director and Creative Developer of Digital Sidekick, I deliver high-quality audio-visual materials for various uses such as corporate videos, creative showreels, digital and gaming content. My expertise in filming, editing and animation has allowed me to work with major global brands and deliver award winning work. With over 15 years' experience in this industry, I also possess the ability to quickly understand my clients' objectives, enabling me to consistently deliver highly engaging solutions.

The Business/Company:

Digital Sidekick is a Creative Video & Animation Production Company based in the North-East of England. It was created to deliver outstanding audio-visual content for broadcast, online, corporate and entertainment output.

We believe your video is your brand in motion. It's one of the best and most cost-effective ways of communicating a message. We identify our client's needs to produce the ideal product for their business. We manage the full production process from beginning to end, this can include: Script Development, Filming, Production, Animation and Editing. This enables our clients to get the video they want. With our super knowledge and high-tech gadgets, we can combine live action, animation and audio to create engaging videos dedicated to your cause!

Marc's presentation will concentrate on:

I was born in 1976 and I'm still alive, which is nice! Since graduating from Hull University in Film and Design, I have worked for ITV, BBC and several Satellite TV Stations.

More recently, I've worked under the alias Digital Sidekick creating hundreds of films and animations for a wide range of clients such as Sage, Flymo and Atomhawk, usually working on three or more projects at a time at various stages of pre-production, production or post production. I'll give you a brief history of my career path, show you a range of projects I've worked on from corporate videos to in game animations. It won't take long and then I can basically answer any questions you have, from setting up a business, working for myself and handling clients.
